

Only Suave
makes hair obey
new soft way!

Utterly Unlike Other Hairdressings!
So light, so penetrating it leaves hair delightfully "soft" looking. Yet, makes hair obey perfectly all day. Arrange hair any way you wish—in a twinkling! Even after shampoo!

Contains Miracle Cortisol!
Stops Dry Hair Worries . . . Split Ends
Suave conditions your hair! Prevents dry-looking hair, frizziness after a permanent—chases dandruff. It's the best helper nature ever had.

"Sparkles" Your Hair!
Wonderfully good for your hair! Rich, penetrating ingredients freshen listless hair . . . make dull hair GLOW!

At Last a Hairdressing That Leaves No Oily After-Film!
Suave soothes, smooths, shimmers hair without that telltale greasy look of oily hairdressings.

Best Seller, 7 to 1,
Because It's Best for You!
The hairdressing women prefer above all others. The one beauty experts recommend. At beauty salons, cosmetic and drug counters everywhere.

created by Helene Curtis—foremost name in hair beauty

"MISTER CHAIRMAN!"

by Alice F. Sturgis

Author of
"Sturgis Code of Parliamentary Procedure"

All of us go to a meeting occasionally. Here's how to make it worth while and fun

EXPERT: "Don't whisper, squirm or stroll"

How should you behave in a meeting? These, I think, are the fundamentals:

Pay attention. Listen to the speaker—whether it is the chairman on the platform or a member from the floor.

As an individual, you have the right to hire a hall, sit in the middle of it by yourself and whistle and yell and stamp your feet, if you want to.

However, as a member attending a meeting, you have a moral obligation to be orderly and attentive.

Don't compete with the speaker. Speakers are hypersensitive to people in an audience who whisper, knit, stroll about, squirm in their seats or make wisecracks to their neighbors.

Even if you are bored, you can politely assume an interested expression and a posture denoting alert attention. With every appearance of genuine concern, you can close your ears and let your thoughts wander to the stock market or your new hat or some pressing problem. The speaker will love you.

Above all—don't interrupt a speaker! Wait for your turn to speak.

If someone is sitting in a chair, you don't shove him out and sit down yourself. You wait until he gives up his chair. The same goes for interrupting.

Avoid personalities. Remember that it is always the motion, not its sponsor, which must be discussed.

You can condemn a measure as heartily as you wish. You can call the proposal "preposterous" or "insane" or "a menace to society."

You cannot, however, attack its proposer or question his motives. Keep in mind that it's measures, not men, you're discussing.

Be brief. Plan what you want to say, and say it concisely.

You wouldn't steal your fellow member's necktie or his wallet; yet if you become word-drunk, you are stealing something far more valuable—his time.

The other night I heard a man ramble on about a single motion for 15 minutes. Two hundred and eighty-four others heard him, too. He consumed 71 hours and 15 minutes of other people's time to say something which he could have said more effectively in one minute.

Be courteous, as well as correct. You have certain rights under parliamentary law, just as every other member has. Assert your rights courteously, not belligerently.

Unfortunately, a few people try to use parliamentary law to push others around and slap them down. Don't be obnoxious with a continual "I rise to a point of order" over every minor technicality. Protect your rights when necessary but do it politely.

FUNDAMENTALLY, good meeting manners are simply the practical application of the ordinary rules of courtesy.

Show the speaker and the others at a meeting the same consideration you would show them in your home—and you'll be much more valuable to them and the ideas you want to promote.

TABLE MANNERS: some of the smaller issues involved confuse many people. Amy Vanderbilt straightens us out on them next week.

RAMBLER: He's stealing other people's time

BRIGHTER SHINES
1/2 THE RUBBING
WITH KIWI
SHOE POLISH

SURVEYS PROVE
MARINES PREFER KIWI 386!

Ask any Serviceman

KIWI
Shoe Polish

BLACK • TAN • BROWN • BLUE
DARK TAN • MID-TAN • OXBLOOD
MANGOGANY • CORDOVAN • NEUTRAL

ITCHING discomfort really RELIEVED

Medicated Resinol Ointment—rich in lanolin, nature's lubricant—softens, soothes, lastingly relieves dry, itchy, irritated skin. Aids healing. Resinol Soap cleanses agreeably. Use both.

RESINOL OINTMENT and SOAP

JOIN THE D.S.S. P.C.F.

("Dr. Scholl's Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Feet). This Society's password is "Happy Feet". For membership you buy a can of soothing Dr. Scholl's Foot Powder. Relieves hot, tender, sensitive, overworked feet. Even new or tight shoes. Helps prevent Athlete's Foot. That's how wonderful Dr. Scholl's Foot Powder is!